

Who would YOU like to see named as our region's Teacher of the Year?

Are you ... a student of a remarkable teacher who inspired you to learn?
... a teacher who wants to recognize the excellence of a colleague?
... a parent whose child excelled through a teacher's involvement?
... a community member or organization who partners with an educator to help teach students to learn?

The Educational Service District 105 Regional Teacher of the Year program is an opportunity to recognize teachers who touch many with their special spirit of working with parents, families, and communities to motivate our youth to grow and achieve success. And maybe ... the teacher you nominate might end up being selected as the Washington State Teacher of the Year, like our region's Susan Johnson did this past year!

We invite you to nominate a teacher to be recognized as the 2009-2010 Regional Teacher of the Year. Nomination forms are available at school or district buildings. Completed applications are due to your district this May.

Pictured top: Washington State Teacher of the Year Susan Johnson of Cle Elum-Roslyn High School, the 2008-2009 ESD 105 Regional Teacher of the Year. Bottom: 2007-2008 ESD 105 Regional Teacher of the Year Brenda Marler of Toppenish Middle School. To learn more about this program, call ESD 105 at (509) 454-3131 or go online to www.esd105.wednet.edu/LearningandTeaching/TeacherofYear/TOY.htm.